THE CHICAGO ORGANIZATIONS ACTION

Shooting of Boy by 65-Year-Old 'Reformer' Arouses Drastic Demands

Chicago, Dec. 3 (AP)—Three anti-prohibition organizations have issued a joint statement in which they demand that the city of Chicago be made a "dry city" and that the state of Illinois be made a "dry state."

Executive of the three societies called an "emergency" conference to formulate a demand upon state, county and city officials that all anti-prohibition "snobs" be immediately dismissed.

Demands to make such a demand was precipitated by the shooting of Herman Kohl, 17, by Daniel L. Gidley, 65-year-old reformer and volunteer investigator of speakeasies and vice rings.

When arrested, Gidley was found to have in his possession letters issued by the state attorney's office and a former Chicago police constable.

The gun with which young Kohl was critically wounded was given Gidley by a federal prohibition agent.

Today's meeting brings together the local heads of the Prohibition Association, the Prohibition League and the Prohibition Society.

The assembled anti-prohibition leaders, it was announced, will call upon the city and state officials to produce full lists of the names of volunteers and assistants in obtaining information regarding suspected dry law violators.

JAPANESE INSISTS THAT CHINESE

New Note to League Council Opposes Neutral Control

Tokio, Dec. 3 (AP)—Foreign Minister Baron Shidehara today completed the draft of Japan's counter proposal to the League of Nations Council's Manchurian peace plan.

New instructions to Ambassador Yoshida probably will be dispatched to Paris late tonight.

The counter-proposal is understood to meet points in the League plan which are unacceptable to the Tokyo government.

Japan is standing firmly on its demand that the Chinese government be required to observe the neutrality of this area, except where humanity may require relief measures, in order to be a sufficient guarantee, while a neutral control it is held, could not be accepted by Japan.

League Council Action Blocked by Japan Demand

Paris, Dec. 3 (AP)—The League of Nations Council's action against a Manchurian peace agreement was today blocked by a demand for a neutral control of the area.

Not only are the Japanese insisting upon a military control of the proposed neutral zone, but they also demand that the Chinese government be required to observe the neutrality of this area, except where humanity may require relief measures, in order to be a sufficient guarantee, while a neutral control it is held, could not be accepted by Japan.

Immediate objections to this program were raised by Dr. Alfred Z. Messing, for the League Council.

LEADERS AGREE FOR CONGRESS DRY LAW VOTE

Washington, Dec. 3 (AP)—Confident that the drys are still in control of Senate and House, congressional leaders have agreed to demands of the wets for a vote on prohibition this session.

On the Senate side Watson of Indiana, Republican leader, and Borah of Idaho, a stalwart prohibitionist, have expressed a willingness for an early showdown.

At the same time Rep. Rainey of Illinois, prospective Democratic leader, and Rep. Reel of New York, Republican spokesman for speakers, said the new House would face the issue directly.

Rep. Lindbergh, Maryland Democrat, leader of the House wet bloc, claims 150 votes for repeal in the House, the largest number since the advent of prohibition.

It has not been decided what proposal the wets will press for a vote. A repeal amendment would require a two-thirds vote of both houses and ratification by three-fourths of the states. A number of anti-prohibitionists favor a referendum on repeal.

TOM MIX

Soldier of Fortune

---by DOROTHY ROE

IN THE BOXER UPRISING TOM MIX WAS SCALPED BY A BURSTING SHELL...

DOWN IN AFRICA HE SHOWED THE TOMMIES HOW TO RIDE.....

HE JOINED UP WITH THE FAMOUS 101 RANCH

MRS. OLIVE STOKES MIX

Tom Mix saw two more wars before he settled down to private guynap in the wild and woolly West. Finding private life too tame after the danger in Cuba, he took part in the Boxer uprising in China and was in on the long and famous siege of Yamen. It was when he was guarding the men at work laying the railroad between Peking and Tientsin that he was scalped by a bursting shell which spent the first few months in a hospital. As soon as Tom's skull was repaired and his thick, black hair grown back, he looked things over and decided to run down to South Africa and see what was doing in the Boer War. Mix was soon mixed up in the diamond fuss.

In South Africa he taught the Tommies how to ride and gave exhibitions on the parade ground every afternoon, demonstrating Texas tactics in the saddle, much to the amusement and awe of the British army. In his first skirmish, the Battle of Spionkop, his division was overpowered and Tom was taken prisoner. Eventually he was shipped back to the United States with 101 other Americans who had taken part in the fighting and was probably the most dashing of that adventurous group of young soldiers of fortune. There weren't any more wars then, so Tom went back to his first love, the great West, and took up his career as a hard-riding cowboy.

He joined up with the famous 101 Ranch outfit, owned by the Miller Brothers, left them to roam all over Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico, Montana, Wyoming and the Dakotas, and then went back to the 101 show. During this period Tom went in heavily for the role of sheriff. He flourished two guns in the name of the law as sheriff of Montgomery County, Kan., of Washington County, Okla., and of Two Buttes, Col. He was city marshal of Dewey, Okla., and held the same office in various towns in Montana, New Mexico and Arizona, was a special enforcement officer in Oklahoma and in between times worked as a Texas Ranger.

During his sojourn in Oklahoma Tom encountered his first serious romance. A picturesque figure with his wide sombrero, his bandanna and his mettlesome horse, he represented all the color and glamour of the old West. Sitting loosely and gracefully in his saddle, whizzing his lariat or breaking a stubborn horse, he captured the imagination and the heart of Olive Stokes, the young and pretty daughter of an Oklahoma rancher. It was a real wild West romance. Their marriage lasted a dozen years. And Tom Mix became the father of a daughter, Ruth.

The fifth installment of the life of Tom Mix will appear tomorrow.

'WHITE COLLAR' LOANS URGED

Newton's system of loans to "white collar" workers was recommended today to other communities by William Phillips, chairman of the Massachusetts emergency committee on unemployment.

The Newton system provides loans instead of charity as a means of keeping a higher strata among those unemployed.

Under the leadership of Lenox Rogers, chairman, Newton's committee will raise $75,000 this year to provide the loans.

The eventual return of the loans left to the pride of the borrowers. Chairman Rogers pointed out today.

Under the system, the workers will not become subject of charity, and much of the fund will be returned to aid others, he said.

OPPONENTS ARE TRAPPED BY 'PSYCHIC BID'

Philadelphia, Dec. 3 (AP)—Just because a contract bridge player bids a heart it doesn't follow that he has some in his hand.

Sir Derrick J. Wernher of Deal, N. J., made a bid like that at the national tournament (last night) and induced his opponents to play a minor instead of a major suit.

Psychic bids, they called. Following is the hand on which Sir Derrick pulled it:

NORTH
S—10
H—Blank
D—A K Q X X X
C—X

EAST
S—A K
H—A K J H X X X
D—A K J H X X X
C—A J X X X X

South
S—Q J X X X
H—A K J X X
D—A K J X X
C—X

Both sides were vulnerable.

LED PARTNER ASTRAY
William E. McKenney of Cleveland, North, dealt and opened. East bid a club and Sir Derrick, South, bid a heart.

Because of South's heart bid, East thought his partner's three-heart declaration was merely a confirmation of club strength and bid six clubs.

East made six clubs, but he could have made six hearts and received credit for the honors he South had not let him astray with the psychic heart bid.

Born Waldemar von Zedwitz and Walter Mahow of New York today led the field in the second day of competition for the national cup championship.

MAX RECOGNIZE LEAGUE
Behind them were P. H. Sims of Deal, N. J., and William E. McKenney of New York, the national individual champion, with 557 points.

The annual bidding will be held today in the center of a business session which also may set on a proposal to reorganize the Bridge League.

The feature of the proposed reorganization, sponsored by George R. Bohn of New York, is to abolish individual membership and admit clubs as units.

CLARA SUEW FOR GAMBLING DEBT

Las Vegas, Nev., Dec. 3 (AP)—For the second time within a year an allegedly unpaid gambling debt has been charged to Clara Row, re-named screen actress.

A suit for $100 was on file here today against the actress on a note claimed to have been given in a gambling debt. Rex Bell, at whose ranch Miss Row was staying, was named co-defendant.

The suit was brought by Louis Corcoran, one of the owners of a gambling resort in Calveria, Nev., who announced the actress had stopped payment on checks for $10,000 given for alleged gambling debts.

Some time ago James McKay, one of the owners of a gambling resort in Calveria, Nev., announced the actress had stopped payment on checks for $10,000 given for alleged gambling debts.

Alimony Is Refused
Husband of Heiress
Los Angeles, Dec. 3 (AP)—Charles J. Chastain, chauffeur who married his employer, Elizabeth McCallister, Oage Indian oil heiress, cannot collect alimony from her, but he is entitled to divorce expenses in a pending suit.

Superior Judge Dudley Valentine ruled that California law makes no provision for a collect alimony even though a wife has an estimated income of $100,000 yearly, as reported in Mrs. Chastain's case.

ARE YOU A PEASANT,
NOMAD OR PRIEST
BY NATURE?
By GILBERT SELDES

IT IS USUALLY CONSIDERED an unfriendly act to tell people that they must be born again. Men and women have been jailed, put into asylums, and crucified for insisting upon that point, so H. G. Wells can be happy that he lives in an age of publication, instead of persecution, for the crime of wishing to make people over. I have already explained that I do not regard Mr. Wells as the victim of a Messianic mission. He differs from the chairman of the Republican Party's national committee only in his range; two or three million men and women who will be changed (or changed back) to enthusiasm for Hoover will satisfy the one, and a complete change in the psychological outlook of a great portion of the two billion people inhabiting the world will satisfy Mr. Wells. I might say that one conversion seems no more difficult than the other.

Jung as Leader

It is a relief to find a psychology addressed to moderns and deliberately not based upon the work of Sigmund Freud. Jung is Wells' leader in the wilderness of the human personality, and Wells has adopted one of his fruitful ideas until, in the end, he brings it back to himself, to something establishing a caste of his cherished Samurai in the very heart of the primitive oasis. Every man, says Wells, has "his sense of obligation, of what is graceful and becoming to do, his pride, what is honorable or insulting for him." This, which constitutes "a man's guiding and satisfying idea of himself," Wells calls, after Jung, the man's "persona." The source of the name is interesting: "The original meaning of persona was the mask worn by an actor in the Greek and Roman drama. It gave him character; it was what he thought he was. In his hand he carried his rolulus, his little roll on which was written the part he had to play in the theatre, his role. It was what he had to do."

Ideal and Act

The conflict between what we think we are and what we have to do is an endless one; the happy few do what their character demands or cherish no illusions about what they are. "Through the allurements, buffetings, and frustrations of life," says Wells, each of us is steering his "cherished persona."

Brilliant Pages

And then Wells goes into a study of three classes of persona, a few pages to each, as penetrating and exciting as those pages of Herbert Spencer, which showed the origin of priest and soldier and king in primitive society, but carried into the present. The first class is peasant. It is distinguished by virtues with which Wells is impatient. "The distinctive character of the peasant type of persona," he says, "is its complete acceptance of the idea that toil is virtue, and its close, intense adhesion to property and the acquisition of property. . . . The peasant loves and breeds, but without any pride or romantic play. . . . His suppressions make him prone to envy. . . . Hard necessities. . . . Stereotyped pleasures. . . . When he is sober he is afraid. . . . Drink releases a fund of suppressed brutality and self-assertion."

Wanderer, Too

The peasant sees his persona in a handsome, but not brighter light, and the peasant persona is still the prevalent type. The second type is the nomad's. This is the adventurer, the gambler, the robber baron, aristocrat, and hero of romance. Wells gives us a flash of the conflict between these two personas: "It was only in the nineteenth century and under the menace of the peasant-minded bourgeoisie that kings began to flaunt their virtues and imitate the bourgeois."

The Priests

The third class is the priestly persona. The individual in this class may be a priest, a statesman, a doctor, a teacher, an artist, even a soldier. The essence is that he works not for gain, but out of devotion to something outside himself. I received a letter today from a reader in West Virginia who makes the point more succinctly than Wells does: "Some of the greatest achievements in the arts, sciences, music and invention have come into life without profit to their authors. Gen. Goethals directed the building of the Panama Canal on a colonel's salary; but he sure was proud of his achievement." Gen. Goethals, in the Wellian terminology, had a priestly persona.

Rigid Morality?

It may be a difficult persona to live with. Mr. Wells says that three of England's greatest authors, Shaw, Bennett "and another" were invited to write advertisements, criticizing as they saw fit, for a department store, and all three refused enormous sums "as an infringement of their priestly function." Yet "the incredible idea of disinterested integrity" lies behind the great works of every age. It enters business, slowly, and even its debasement to a spurious "service" (as we had it about five years ago) does not entirely defeat it.

"To this day," says Wells, "the typical face of the big industrialist and the big financier has a boorish quality" because he has carried over a peasant persona. The conflict between the three types has created civilization. One type holds on to property, one type consumes it (taking it from the other); the third is indifferent to property, possession and gain.

Saviors

The priestly class, wherever it exists, is the salvation of the world, and Wells' implicit belief is that the dominant minds of the world must be turned into this class before the world will be safe from disaster. I get little sense in his work of a redemption of the mass of mankind, today or tomorrow. He is even unapologetic to the experiment in Russia, which is creating a devoted class (you may call it priestly) of several millions and preventing both the getting and the consumption of property among a hundred and fifty million. It seems to me that the "open conspiracy" of the most highly trained, the most fortunately placed, still holds its sway over Wells' mind.

He does not say so, but one feels that he would be content if a hundred thousand effective men and women in each country would take the vow of priestliness. If these included financiers, scientists and statesmen (and if they could impose their will on the masses) they might lead the world out of the bankruptcy of business, and more important, out of the bankruptcy of minds. As I have said before about Wells' work, I may have my disagreements, but I cannot treat him with a light gesture of dismissal. Even if he were not important, his subject and his intentions are.

JANE BANCROFT HAD THE HONOR OF BEING THE first debutante of the season when she was presented at a tea in September and honors have been heaped on her ever since.

Last evening at the Hotel Somerset she greeted her hosts of friends at one of the largest and most brilliant balls of the winter.

We have never seen the Princess ballroom more beautifully or lavishly decorated with flowers, exquisite taste being shown in the arrangement. Huge Chinese blue vases between long windows and doors held long stemmed blush roses in fountain effect, with delicate vines festooning the boxes, giving the effect of stepping into a gorgeous rose garden. From the ballroom a moonlit terrace shadowed with trees and shrubs enticed dancers during the intermissions, and white stone steps against the greens invited the romantic.

ANNE DICK Mrs. Hugh Bancroft received with her popular daughter, standing before a bank of precious blooms. She wore a princess gown of black velvet with diamante yoke, which could not outshine her charming, gracious personality. Miss Jane was frocked in white chiffon with glistening tangles in bolero effect with a spray of orchids on the shoulder. She is tall, slender and has an attractive naturalness which was many friends.

Gorgeous Gowns; Handsome Stag Line

SIMPLY EVERYBODY WAS AMONG THOSE PRESENT—it would be far easier to name those whom we did NOT see there. What gorgeous gowns! It appeared as though everyone had saved their very BESTEST frock for Jane's ball. And let us forget what a handsome and peppy stag line. How they can pick and choose with so many lovely maidens to wait on seems a hopeless task to us. Excess of last year's buds beautifully blossomed out held their own among the dancers. This year's group seem smaller, cuter and peppier than they.

TO NAME ONLY A FEW, A lovely girl whose party comes this week is Harriet Moseley, too chic for VOILETS in black velvet with ermine at the neckline and in coiffe effect of the waist, just too Parisian. The tireless trio Anne Dick, Harriet Bartlett and Dorothy Forbes made up a dashing bouquet of buds and Madelyn Phillips was striking in white with ermine.

Serita Bartlett was up trimmed with Kolinsky. Homely beautiful, Molly Harlow caused a stir in black chiffon. Rose and Emily Perkins—Rose was one of the most noticeable, red and gold lame in pinks effect, one of the loveliest things we have ever seen.

FOLLY THUNDERSON WAS with that perfect fustian, C. L. Peterson, and Helen Homans seemed to have David Crockett intrigued. We almost joined the sotto-voilets club when we asked Nancy Maxwell to pose for a picture with her neck, thinking of course it was her NEW fiance. We got a just in time. She looked during in coral chiffon. From Milton came the George and Emily and Sally Drew and Al Nickerson, one of the Adonises, thought life was just grand.

IN THE CROWD WE glimpsed Gerald Brownwell, merely a Boston boy, but more recently of the New York elite. We hear he is studying at New Prep in an effort to keep himself off a certain vicious lunette who came out this year. And what a charmer Jane Wheeler is—Henry Benson seemed to think so, too. In which case, she looked like a doll to hang on the Christmas tree—the one that Jane is going to believe in Santa Claus.

AMONG THE AUTUMNS WAS Mrs. John B. Chase, very smart in black with brilliant trimming, and her friend, Mrs. Howard Johnson, Katherine's sweet mother. It was a pleasure to meet Mrs. William H. Brown, Adolphe Bell's mother, who has the manner of a duchess. Betty's lovely profile was inherited. Betty in blonde satin, Mrs. D. H. Britton-Draper was present but left early and was unremembered. Lady was Mrs. Gibson King, charming in ice-cream. Last bit.

Officers Elected by Horse Thief Hunters

The Society in Dedham for the Amputation of Thieves held its 121st annual meeting last night in Memorial Hall, Dedham, with more than 500 present.

Officers elected were Carl B. Cheney, president; John F. Riley, vice-president; and Charles Gilson, clerk and treasurer. The three auditors are Robert B. Worthington, Fred E. Tinsbury and E. Lincoln Conant and the standing committee comprised James H. Hooper, Arthur Bateman, Ronald Crawford, William P. Colburn, John S. Smith, Alton C. Worthington and Percy Chamberlain.

POPULAR DEBUTANTE IS HONORED AT BALL

MISS HELEN HOMANS MR. DAVID CROCKETT SOCIETY, YOUNG AND OLD, thronged the beautifully decorated Princess ballroom of the Hotel Somerset last night for the ball given by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft in honor of their debutante daughter, Jane. It was one of the outstanding social events of the season, the gorgeous gowns being a feature. Miss Bancroft and her mother are shown in the center photo. Miss

Bazaar to Aid Anne Mathews Peabody Home

A bazaar, the proceeds of which will go to aiding the Peabody Home for Crippled Children, will take place at the Hotel Brunswick, on Boylston st., today and tomorrow. This is an annual affair, in charge of Mrs. Edward B. Kellogg, who has several committees working under her direction.

One of the largest dinners given last evening before the ball in Miss Jane Bancroft's honor, was that at which Mrs. Pierpont L. Stackpole was hostess at the Chilton Club for her niece, Miss Betty McGilley, and a large party of her friends. Among others were Miss Barbara Greenwood and her fiancé, Mr. John Bradley, whose engagement was announced this week by Miss Greenwood's parents, the Henry Vose Greenoughs of Brookline. Miss Barbara is the first of this season's debutantes to become engaged—unless some of the others are holding out on us!

AMONG THOSE PRESENT were Mrs. Curtis Guild, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus P. Loring, Jr., Mrs. James Hopkins, and Mrs. George F. Minna. Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Brown, Adolphe Bell's mother, who has the manner of a duchess. Betty's lovely profile was inherited. Betty in blonde satin, Mrs. D. H. Britton-Draper was present but left early and was unremembered. John Wanamaker's Grandson Married Philadelphia, Dec. 3.—C. E. Egerton Warburton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barclay H. Warburton, of Jenkintown, Pa., and Palm Beach, and Miss Marie Louise Hatch, were married Tuesday at her home in Detroit. It was learned here late yesterday. The bridegroom is a grand son of the late John Wanamaker.

Just Folks

Exit Santa

With Christmas but a month away,
For us the outlook's rather drear,
We view the lovely holiday,
With genuine regret this year;
For Santa Claus will not appear
Though hard we've tried the faith to hold,
He leaves when age and wisdom near,
And little Janet's nine years old.
Time was we kept the Christmas day
With all its mystic mirth and cheer,
The Saint arrived with pack and sleigh,
The tinkle of the bells 'd heard;
The patter of his prancing deer
Upon the roof his coming told,
Now age has whispered in her ear,
And little Janet's nine years old,
Let cynics scoff how'er they may
Truth waits a mystic and sonnet gear;
For every gain a price we pay
The cost of wisdom's fact or fear,
Dreams die when fact are made to clear
Since knowledge is a mistress cold,
Now she has learned to doubt and fear,
And little Janet's nine years old.

L'Envoi

Old Santa Claus we need no here,
For when Christmas bells are tolled,
The realm of childhood is its sphere
And little Janet's nine years old!

WE'LL BE BETTER, BUT SMARTER, FOR SLUMP,

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

DEAN WALLACE B. DONHAM of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, speaking recently before the American Society of Mechanical Engineers in New York, gave the warning that in his opinion any country that tried to set up a bureaucratic control of industry might involve dangers greater than the possible good accruing from nationalization and regulation and control. It might, for instance, destroy individual initiative and set up a caste system. It might, too, must, set up a caste system. It might, too, must, set up a caste system. It might, too, must, set up a caste system.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

The newspaper account did not say whether Dean Donham mentioned specifically any particular point which had been put before the American people for their consideration. Perhaps he was speaking only of the marked tendency everywhere observable in our politicians, college professors, publicists, clergymen, and even business men, to favor over the traditional American doctrine of free competition, enlightened selfishness, and the survival of the fittest, and to put their trust in some form of collectivism.

But Is Plan Not Idealistic?

Even Mr. Swope's elaborate plan provides for a transition to a degree incredible 20 years ago. Dean Donham points out, although any remedy proposed must meet changing conditions and minimize the strains in a democratic society, yet it must preserve individual opportunity and must not run the risk that Russia is running.

All of which is perfectly sound doctrine. But I wonder whether Dean Donham, in his traditional insistence upon the preservation of American opportunity to rise as one of our most precious assets, is not doing lip service to an ideal which was fundamental in its origin and which obviously cannot survive the passing of the conditions which made it idealistic.

At the beginning of the depression everyone, in business and government alike, insisted that the scale of wages and of income must not come down. But although the scale of wages and living is coming down everywhere and will come down still further, Mr. Walter Lippmann of the Herald-Tribune, one of our wisest observers, takes that as a matter of course. Intelligent labor organizations are stoutly suggesting wage cuts that they can control in preference to taking arbitrary wage cuts or layoffs.

America has been the land of opportunity for a century simply because for the first time in the world's history a small nation of highly civilized people, with centuries of progress behind them, found themselves in command of a vast and wealthy continent entirely unexploited.

First the Flood, Then the Surplus

For nearly three centuries their population and their needs never caught up with their opportunities. The land was there to be exploited, to be populated, to be staffed with professional and skilled leaders. Wave after wave of immigration suppld people to do the dirty work and even wave after wave of the people higher in the social, financial and professional scale.

Never before in the history of the world was opportunity so open, production so enormous, professional or business advancement so easy and natural. The result is that at the end of this era which has closed we find ourselves everywhere with surpluses. Surpluses of products, surpluses of labor, surpluses of men in the higher brackets of business and professional life. Too many lawyers and engineers, too many school teachers, too many college graduates with no jobs in sight, worthy of their expenditure in time and money. Too many vice presidents and executives in business, too elaborate and expensive organizations, too many salesmen, white collar men with no basic skill they can fall back upon.

The land of free and easy matter-of-course opportunity has turned all upon the pond it has been feeding. When it was needed but true enough.

In the future the opportunity to rise in America is going to approximate the opportunities to rise in the older, poorer, more difficult, thrifler civilizations. The road to the top is going to be harder, narrower, more competitive. All the professional standards are going to be raised.

It Means a Better, Smarter Race

Teachers and lawyers and engineers won't be turned out any more by the thousands like automobile parts—interchangeable. The land won't be so full of very young men and women, easily and partially educated, of professional standing in name only, boosted hastily to the top in business because of the exploded myth of "youth"—that myth which turned American business over to the young, inexperienced plungers and racketeers who brought us to this pass.

The present generation is going to suffer bitterly, even if good times come back. The new good times cannot possibly be up to their expectations and memories of the past. Many of them will find themselves permanently in modest positions, which they will have to make the most of in service, in usefulness, in happiness.

Heaven forbid that we do anything artificially to limit further American opportunity. Natural causes, geography, the march of time have done that for us here and for all. The era of free expansion and inflation is over for good.

But Heaven also forbid that we keep on inculcating our young people with a false philosophy of life, with a picture of an America that will return no more, with an implied promise of lavish opportunities, easy and profitable professions, rapid advancement, low standards of competence, easily-jumped barriers to success.

Our boys and girls must be educated henceforth to make the most of limited opportunity, to live modest and useful lives, and therein to find their happiness. And education for intellectual culture and satisfaction must take the place of education for what William James once called "the bitch Goddess, Success."

PLAN CALLS FOR CONSTRUCTION OF DAM

New Span to Supplant Wellington Bridge Also Sought in Project

Recommendations for the construction of a Mystic Valley basin have been contained in a report filed with the Massachusetts Legislature today by the Metropolitan district commission and the state department of public health.

The recommendations call for the construction of a dam with gates at a point near the Tilton & Maud has been bridge, which is one of the basins of the Mystic river and the construction of a new bridge.

NEW BRIDGE, 1,100 FT.

Because of the fact that the old Wellington bridge, in the opinion of the state department of public health, is in a state of disrepair and is a poor bridge to carry the present inadequate traffic.

Under the plan the new bridge would be a high level, drawless bridge, elevated sufficiently to permit passage of the small craft.

Because some of the stream is used for disposal of waste and sewage, the state department of public health recommends that in case where this portion of the stream occurs, surface water be separated from sewage and other waste material, and be taken care of through connections with the Metropolitan sewerage system.

It is estimated that the dam at the bottom of the basin would cost approximately $500,000. If this dam should be located nearer Wellington harbor, the cost would be increased, but the entire project cost might be decreased by increasing the dam in a new Wellington basin.

The Perfect Remedy For Constipation
CHENEY'S PSYLLIUM SEEDS

Science has discovered the perfect regulator. The seeds of Psyllium Plantago. Perfect because they give bulk without roughage; they stimulate the intestines but do not irritate. They are non-habit forming. Like agar agar (but less expensive) they swell when moistened, making a slippery jelly that acts as a good lubricant to aid bowel movement. Easy to take—a tablespoon full at meal times, with water. These seeds swell in water and pass through the intestines smoothly absorbing and carrying away the poisons. Used for years in the health resorts of Europe, we have imported a tremendous quantity and are selling at the lowest prices in Boston.

PRICES MIXED
STOCKS
TENDINGS

New York, Dec. 3.—Price changes were mixed in today's trading on the New York Stock Exchange, following yesterday's rally. The market followed the execution of normally selling orders.

As trading progressed, Goldman Sachs, Federal Reserve and Auburn moved up over a point, while Fairmont, Kolls, and others fell.

The initial selling and showed only a minor reaction for a price rally after establishing a new low. Point for more activity in the late afternoon, when the market showed for the first time a slight advance.

The decline Wednesday put the market virtually back to its previous levels and many investors were left with a feeling of uncertainty.

Some weakness in the bond market has emphasized the question of investment confidence, for bonds have again advanced in price without regard to intrinsic value.

Realizing that the market has spread to less of a question of strength.

Overnight news included the report of stock exchange members for November, showing a decline of more than 100,000 shares in the record low since 1929.

The contrast with the peak, 335,000, indicates that in September, 1929, indicates that in September, 1929, indicates that in September, 1929.

The general chairman's committee of the Canadian stock exchange has notified the Dominion Government that it is not prepared to accept the 10 per cent wage cut proposed by the board of conciliation.

While we have not yet seen the figures which have been filed, we are informed that the proposed reduction of 200 shares of stock and that the corporation is not prepared to meet its present liabilities.

Receivings for the month of November dropped sharply from 100 in the month before, a comparison by Standard Statistics Co. shows. Favorable changes, on the other hand, remained about the same, 90 in November against 20 in October.
